

Case study: Abscess

Patient: The patient was presented with a painful, swollen, infected and necrotic left front paw caused bite wounds from another cat. The limb was painful and the patient refused to take any weight on this limb.

Treatment: Phototherapy was done once a day, for 3 minutes. The patient was kept on concurrent antibiotics.

Outcome: 24 hours after the start of phototherapy, the swelling has gone down completely and the patient could make full use of his limb again. No surgery was ever needed and the patient healed without any complications.

Presenting wound

12 Hours and 1 phototherapy session later

Presenting wound

12 Hours and 1 phototherapy session later

5 Phototherapy sessions later